THE

Signification of Moles.

A mole on a man's shoulder shews adversity, and threatens him with an untimely end; but a woman having one in the same place, shews she shall abound in riches.

A man or woman with a mole upon the wrist, shews increase of children; but affliction in old age.

Any one having a mole near unto the breast shews them malicious.

A mole on the belly shews the person addicted to gluttony.

A mole on the knee shews a man fortunate in marriage, and his wife to be virtuous and wealthy. A woman having one on the same place, shews her happy and fruitful in children.

A mole on the ancle of a man, shews him effiminate, and to act the part of a woman, like Sardanapalus at the spinning wheel.

A woman having the like, she shall lord it over her husband.

A mole on the foot shews a man fortunate in getting riches. If a woman has the same, it betokens her the same happiness.

A mole under the right thigh shows a lofty and aspiring genius, which will make the man happily rich; but if it proves to be black, it is an indication of contention, strife, and debates with his wife. To a woman it promises good fortune by husbands; but if it be black, her state and condition will be given to change; for if she be poor in youth, she will be rich in old age; and if rich in youth, then she will be poor in old age.

THE

Interpretation of Dreams,

AS THEY RELATE TO

Good or Bad Fortune.

THE generality of mankind are not over fond of giving credit to dreams; but did they consider what events have been discovered, and how many mischiefs prevented by dreams, it will not be accounted a piece of impudence to set down the experience of former ages, and shew what divine and human authors have recorded concerning them; in order to which, it is necessary, in the first place to shew what a dream is, and what we mean thereby. A dream is a motion of the animal spirits, denoting good or evil to come, and are always figurative, agreeable to the thing dreamed of: thus a man that is in a ship dreams that the ship wherein he is perishing, and finds it so; or else the allegorical, which is a figure by which one thing is made to signify another.

For a man to dream that his head is very great, signifies to a rich man dignity; to a man that is poor riches; to a champion it denotes victory; but if an usurer dreams so, it gives hopes of money; to servants it shews slavery; and to him that affects quietness, it is a sign of pain and trouble.

To dream that one's hair is long denotes good.

To dream that one's hair is disordered, long, or harsh, shews trouble and disturbance.

To dream that a man has no hair on his face, denotes shame facedness.

If a seaman dreams that his head is polled, he is n danger of being shipwrecked.
